

Spring 2019 VPR Workshops

Communicating Your Research

Wednesday, March 6, 3:00 - 4:30 pm

Gatton College of Business and Economics, Room 127

Presented by Alicia Gregory, Director of Research Communications

Who should attend: Faculty, staff and student researchers who want to learn strategies to distill complex scientific concepts into plain language. The workshop will discuss public perception of research, communicating to non-scientists, advocating for science, identifying and eliminating jargon, and talking to the media.

Grant Writing Strategies

Tuesday, March 19, 1:00 - 5:00 pm

Gatton College of Business and Economics, Woodward Hall

Who should attend: New faculty and anyone who would like an introduction to specific funding agencies or to how the Federal Appropriations process works and what future funding priorities we may expect. Each workshop will be free-standing so attendees may come to the sessions that best fit their interests.

1:00 - 1:50 pm— Federal Funding Priorities and the Appropriations Process: Eric King

2:00 - 2:50 pm— Grant Writing Strategies for NIH: Craig Rush

3:00 - 3:50 pm— Grant Writing Strategies for NSF: Martha Peterson

4:00 - 4:50 pm— Grant Writing Strategies for DOE: Rodney Andrews

Updates from UK Research

Wednesday, April 10, 3:00 - 4:30 pm

WT Young Library Auditorium

Who should attend: All faculty who do research, to hear about research progress and priorities, how UK uses F&A to support the UK Research infrastructure and the electronic search tools available to find collaborators to enhance your research competitiveness.
